LEGION FIELD DAY AT BRYANT POND

A large number of people attended the field day held Saturday by the Jackson Silver Post of the American Legion at Bryant Pond. The Boy Scouts from the Oxford County Scout Camp assisted the members of the Legion in entertaining the company.

Attractively decorated booths, where all kinds of fancy work, soft drinks, candy, ice cream, "hot dogs," etc., were dispensed, were presided over by the ladies of the Auxiliary.

In the forenoon the Boy Scouts entertained the sports which resulted as follows:
60 yard dash—J. McCarthy and E. Sorenson, Rumford; M. Smith, Norway.
Three-legged race—M. Smith, J. Farum and H. Keyo, F. Keyo and Irvine Todd.
Obstacle race—F. Sorenson, carrying McCaughy; McCarthy, carrying L. Sorenson; Packard, carrying Sargent.
100 yard dash—McCarthy and F. Sorenson, Rumford; M. Smith, Norway.
Suit case race, in which the participants slogged dressed as ladies—Lee Pettengill, A. R. Cummings.
Running broad jump—J. McCarthy, 15 feet; F. Sorenson, 14 feet, 11 inches.
High jump—Tom Maynard, 62 inches; McCarthy and Todd tied for second.
A tug of war was staged between teams representing the Legion and the Scouts, the Legion winning.

In the afternoon some of the events of the program were omitted to leave room for two ball games. The first game was played between West Paris and Locke's Mills, the latter team winning easily by a score of 12 to 9. The batteries were as follows: West Paris, Haines, Doughty and Rowe, Packard, Rowe and Doughty; Locke's Mills, Clifford and Swan. The second game was between Bryant Pond and Andover, the former winning after a good game by the score of 8 to 7. The batteries were as follows: Bryant Pond, Morse and DeShon; Andover, Bacon and Baker.

The day closed with a grand ball in Dudley Open House in the evening. A large crowd enjoyed this part of the program.

Altogether this was a great day for the Legion and the committee in charge of the affair is to be congratulated on the fine way in which everything went off, not a thing being left undone to make this the one best event of the season.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

BASEBALL
Oxford County Scout Camp Ties Locke's Mills Twice, 2-2, 5-5
The Oxford County Scout Camp has succeeded in giving the Locke's Mills team a couple of "eye openers" in the line of baseball. Twice these two teams have met on the Locke's Mills grounds and the score left a tie. The first game was played the 10th and the last one Tuesday the 15th. The players on the Scout team were from all parts of Oxford County and certainly showed "all round" baseball by holding this "round local team to a tie twice in succession.

Hutchinson and Bodwell were the battery for the Scout team in the first game and the Perham brothers starred in the field. The battery for the second game was Big League Enigh, Rumford Falls and Bodwell, while Packard and Perham starred in the field. The Locke's Mills team used their regular battery, Clifford and Swan.

Next year the Oxford County Scout Camp plans to have a regular schedule of games with local town teams.

MRS. EDWARD C. CHAMBERLAIN
Mrs. Edward C. Chamberlain, aged 73, died at her home, 284 Ocean Avenue, Portland, Maine, Friday, Aug. 18. She was born in Bethel, Maine, April 23rd, 1849, and was the daughter of Alpha and Roxanna Twitcheall.

In September, 1870, she married Edward C. Chamberlain and is survived by her husband and one daughter, Mrs. Edwin W. Gehring.

The funeral service was held at Ocean Avenue, Sunday, Aug. 20, at 2:30 P. M. Rev. Israel Jordan of Falmouth officiating.

The burial was at Riverside Cemetery, Bethel, Maine, Monday, Aug. 21. A brief service was held at the cemetery, conducted by Rev. S. T. Achenbach, pastor of the Bethel Congregational church, of which she was a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown of Berlin, N. H., and Mr. Thomas Brown and family were Sunday callers on their mother, Mrs. Clara Brown, at Christmas Cove.

BARN COLLAPSED AT HARTFORD

An accident happened at the home of Frank Longel of Hartford, Tuesday night which came near being a serious one. Mr. Longel had been milking and had taken his lantern to return to the house when the roof of the barn collapsed and the floor settled several feet. The lantern was extinguished which no doubt saved the life of Mr. Longel and a nephew, Frankie Taylor of Lynn, Mass., and two nieces, Florence Coyne of Lynn, Mass., and Jequette Clemens of Marlboro, Mass., who were with him. All were unhurt save many bruises, with the exception of the Clemens girl who was pinned under a cow. At first it was thought she was seriously injured, but it is now thought she will recover. Guided by a slight draft they succeeded in reaching the door. There were twelve head of cattle and a colt in the tie-up. Help was summoned and all the animals were pulled out with ropes, none being seriously injured.

W. O. Thomas, Minister
"Many years ago the first chemists were spending their days trying to transmute the baser metals into gold. How well they succeeded we all know. There is in all human experience a side that seems to have only the element of destruction. Some men fly into a rage against the Almighty when their turn comes. Others turn their backs on the experience, and ignore it. Still others treat all the metals of human experience with religion, and transmute them into pure gold. They are the kind of people you like to meet. They are also the kind of people we all may be. We must simply get their viewpoint."

Morning worship at 10:30. Theme, "The Difficult Problems of Human Experience."
Sunday School at 11:30.
Evening devotion at 7:30. Theme, "Peter, or 'On This Book'."
Only four more Sundays before we close for eight months. Don't neglect the things that matter most. Every-body come.

HAPPENINGS OF CURRENT INTEREST BASIS OF "REPORTED MISSING" PLOT

International Intrigue Over Possession of Abandoned Merchant Marine Invented to Carry Story Brimful of Action, Thrills and Comedy

No better story for motion picture purposes has ever been utilized than the tale which forms the basis of "Reported Missing," the Owen Moore picture which is to be presented at Odeon Hall, Saturday evening, Aug. 26.

Richard Boyd (Owen Moore) comes into possession of the Boyd Shipping Company by inheritance. This company has an option on a huge fleet of ships which is much sought after by a scheming Oriental shipping magnate. Young Boyd, who has been an idler, does not seem to care whether Oman, the man in question gets the ships or not. In fact he doesn't seem to enjoy anything except a good time. The early scenes showing Boyd after a wild night are full of laughs. Pauline Dunn, who is more than ordinarily interested in Boyd, determines to make him get down to business. She urges him to save the ships for America. Boyd agrees to this and gives his word that he will exercise his option. This infuriates Oman who determines to kidnap Boyd. This he does and is compelled to also kidnap Pauline who raises an outcry when Boyd is spirited away. The two are put aboard a ship which goes to sea, with the intention of keeping Boyd out of the way until the option expires. A storm comes up and the ship is stranded. Pauline's uncle demands that Oman return the girl. This the Oriental agrees to do. He searches for the lost ship and upon finding it sails for home in his high powered boat with the girl aboard. In the meanwhile young Boyd is rescued by the crew of a battleship. He gives chase to Oman in a Navy hydroplane. Oman wins the race, however, and makes the girl a captive, hoping to hold her and in this way make Boyd give him the option.

The young man fearing for the girl, agrees to do this and goes to Oman's house to carry out his part of the bargain. However, on his way he advises some of his friends from the battleship of his intentions. They advise him to fight it out and not give up his option. With their assistance he succeeds in getting the better of Oman. In the fight at the house the Oriental is killed. Boyd rescues the girl and later exercises his option.

EMPIRE GROVE CAMP

One of the most profitable and best attended camp meetings in years has just closed at Poland. A fine spirit of fellowship was shown throughout. The "swimming hole" proved to be one of the best bathing lakes in Maine. Each afternoon at 3:30 lines of automobiles filled with eager, laughing bathers hurried to the beach of "Pratt's Pond."

Managers of the dining hall said that they ought to have charged the Volley Ball crowd extra because their appetite was so good.

A Boy's Department was organized for Bible study and recreation. Bethel took high rank in attendance at the Camp, having a representation of twenty-seven.

Excellent addresses on the Sermon on the Mount were given each day by Rev. W. J. Layton. Rev. L. L. Hale who has just returned from China proved very interesting. Each morning stereopticon lectures were given on Home and Foreign Fields. These lectures were followed by evangelistic messages. Bishop J. W. Hamilton spoke Wednesday afternoon and Bishop E. H. Hughes gave a stirring message on the last Sunday afternoon to about five hundred people.

Every day at one o'clock there was a story hour for children and preceding each afternoon message there was an object lesson for children and young people. At 6:15 each day came the young people's service. The leaders were: Monday and Tuesday, C. B. Oliver; Wednesday, T. G. Chapman; Thursday, L. L. Hale; Friday, Ordell Bryant; Saturday, Madeline Parlin; Sunday, D. B. Holt. On Friday Rev. E. C. Parlin gave a fine address on his experiences in China.

From early morning until late in the evenings Superintendent D. B. Holt moved quietly but efficiently about and proved to be the central governing figure throughout the camp meeting.

RUMFORD MAN FOUND DEAD

Slouched down as though in sleep, partially dressed, and with a cigar in his hand, the dead body of William Morgan was found in his room in the Oxford House last week by Bert Scribner, the proprietor of the house. Mr. Scribner chanced to pass through the hallway and noticed that Morgan's door was ajar. He looked in, and seeing Morgan sitting in the chair asleep was about to pass on, when something peculiar about the look of the man attracted his attention. Investigation proved that Mr. Morgan was dead. Mr. Scribner at once summoned Mander and Perry, undertakers, and Dr. Thibodeau, medical examiner, who stated that Morgan had been dead about an hour and a half when found. There was no evidence of foul play, and death is attributed to heart failure. Mr. Morgan has been rooming at the Oxford House for about three weeks, and previous to that had been rooming at the home of Frank Littlefield in the Park. He has been a resident of Rumford for about five years, and had been employed at the Oxford mill. He was about 45 years of age, and was not married.

KIMBALL FAMILY REUNION AT EAST BETHEL

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Kimball of East Bethel enjoyed a grand reunion as all their children and grandchildren returned for an "Old Home Day," "The Old Homestead," Sunday, Aug. 20. A bounteous picnic dinner was served on the lawn and all gathered around the old round chair table as of yore. Prayer was offered and the following toast given:
"Here's to father and mother, the best in all this world,
May they always be happy with all their boys and girls;
May their lives be all sunshine, a day of sweet song,
Their years with their children be many more, happy and long."

A perfect day of happiness was enjoyed by all present, who were: Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kimball of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Clark, High Masson Clark, Wendell Kimball Clark of Auburn, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Frost, Miss Marjorie Edna Frost of Kingfield, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Norman Sanborn, Miss Hazel Mae Sanborn, Miss Lillian Faye Sanborn and Miss Mary Bartlett Sanborn of Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Ceylon Mellen Kimball and Master Ceylon Kimball of East Bethel. Callers for the day were: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Cato, Mrs. P. D. Bartlett, Miss Evelyn Bartlett, Mr. Dayton Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bartlett, Master Otis Bartlett and baby Warren Bartlett, all of Bethel, N. H., and Mrs. Marietta Bartlett of East Bethel.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

BIRDS RECOGNIZE UNIFORM

Scoutmaster John S. Mallette of Troop 1 of Haverhill, O., tells of a successful game sanctuary to which his troop volunteers their services as a troop good turn, as follows:

"Stafford game sanctuary is the property of the Cleveland Worsted Mills company. In the development of a water supply for their mills located in Haverhill it was necessary to acquire about 1,000 acres of land and about six miles of right of way. An engineer of this development constructed six miles of canal diverting the waters of a creek and conveying same to two small lakes, which were connected by canals. By means of a dam we raised the level of these lakes about 20 feet making over 200 acres of water surface. The lakes are about five miles from Haverhill.

"Naturally my boys spend a great amount of time there. Patrol hikes every Saturday throughout the year and overnight hikes on holidays and during the summer camp. Two years ago we leased it all to the state of Ohio as a game sanctuary, and the task of looking after the refuge fell to our troop. The state planted about 250 ring-necked pheasants in this refuge. The troop built approved shelters and feeding huts. During the winter these huts are visited every Saturday and a supply of grain, raisins, etc., is placed in them by the boys. Feeding stations were also maintained for the quail, of which we have about six covers. Last year we purchased three pairs of mallard ducks and raised about thirty youngsters. This year the state sent the troop six more ducks. We are putting in a pair of English fall ducks this summer and expect that during the fall flight we will have 1,000 wild ducks to feed instead of the 400 or 500 we had last year. On account of the feed and protection we had over 100 birds stay until the lakes were completely frozen over. We have planted wild rice this year and expect to cut down our hand-feeding.

"The boy scout uniform is the only one the birds recognize.

"Of course the song birds have been taken care of, rather incidentally, it is true, but they have increased in number and variety. A pair of cranes make these lakes their summer home. We secure our proportion of fish from the state hatcheries and we further supplement this by protection during the black bass spawning season."

STUDYING THE WAYS OF BIRDS

Bird study on hikes keeps a scout "mentally awake" and suggests new ways of aiding his feathered friends.

BOY SCOUT EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

A boy scout summer employment bureau has been put into operation in Shelbyville, Ind. The plan has already been in successful operation for several summers, receiving heavy support from business men. Plans are also being made to conduct "summer job service" every year to divide a specified number of hours during the summer to the service of the city.

FOR BETTER MOTION PICTURES

Upon the invitation of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America was represented at a recent all-day meeting by James H. West, chief scout executive; Frank H. Matthews of the editorial board; Charles H. Smith, director of publicity. This was a meeting at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, New York city, of the heads of the principal nationally featured organizations.

HANDICRAFT FOR GIRLS

By DOROTHY PERKINS

(Copyright by A. West Hall.)

GARDEN IDEAS.

It is hoped that each of you girls has made a garden where you can experiment all summer with growing things; or, if you have not, that you will right away.

As good a small sprinkler as you would want is a can with perforated bottom (Fig. 1). This can be filled by dipping into a pail. Hold it as the girl in Fig. 2 is holding it, for sprinkling. Punch the holes through the can bottom with a nail.

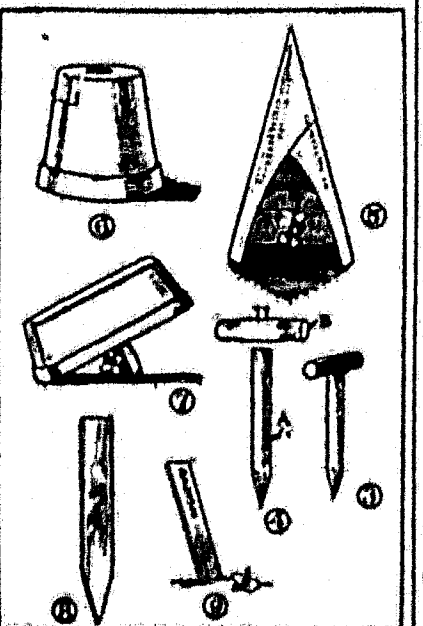

When planting, have you ever used a dibble with which to make holes of the right size for seeds and transplantings? Fig. 3 shows a simple dibble made of a short piece of broom-handle (A, Fig. 2), pointed at one end, with a short crosspiece (B) nailed across the other end for a handle. The handle may be omitted, but it will give a better hold for working the point into the ground.

It is necessary to protect transplantings from the sun until they have taken root and are able to withstand the heat without wilting, and Figs. 6, 6 and 7 show three good means of shading them. Fig. 6 shows a paper tunnel, so folded that one side, left open, can be turned away from the sun to admit light and air. The flower-pot shield (Fig. 6) is more commonly used, for short plants, because flower-pots are almost always at hand; the basket shield is good, because, while it gives protection it admits light and air. These coverings should be removed after sundown, of course, so the plant will receive the night dew.

Short pieces of lath, pointed at one end (Fig. 8), with the names of the seeds planted pointed or otherwise marked upon them (Fig. 9), make excellent garden markers, and if you will sandpaper the sticks and give them a coat of white enamel before marking them, they will be worth while keeping from year to year.

A garden is not complete without a bird bath, and in Fig. 10 I have shown one which also will serve the purpose of a vine rack. The first thing to do is to drive a pole into the ground. Then select straight pieces of branches 12 inches long, pass a piece of cord around each near one end (Fig. 11), and tie around the pole about ten inches below its top (Fig. 12). These pieces form a crotch-setting for the bird basin, for which a small tin pan may be used. After setting the pan upon the pole top, saw another piece of heavy cord around the branches, near their upper ends, with which to bind the branches tightly against the sides of the pan. Tie cords to the top, and run them down to stakes driven into the ground, to strain your vine rack.

Have Settled Plan for Work.

Some men are in a state of perpetual confusion. They are always apparently as busy as bees, but they never achieve anything. It is no use working unless there is a settled plan. The day's activities should be carefully planned—so many hours for work, so many hours for study, so many for leisure relaxation.—R. H. Woodman Northridge.

Do your friends know what you are doing?

If you have any news items or articles that will be of interest to our readers, let's have them.

It takes news to make a good newspaper and co-operation on the part of the people and editor will do it. Are you willing to help?

We strive to get all the good news in order to improve our paper. Let's have your items. Send them in or use your telephone. We are in our office from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. every day except Saturday when we close at noon.

Andover was visited by the most severe electrical shower Friday that it has had in many years. The storm began in the morning and continued at intervals all day, when at 6 P. M., the lightning was very severe. The storm lasted until 10 o'clock. Hail stones fell and a strong wind tore off many of the branches from the trees. In the morning a bolt of lightning struck the barn of Edward Akers tearing off shingles then descending to the ground tore a post to pieces. Later in the day a bolt of lightning struck the shed of the house occupied by Mr. Milton Grossman on Pine street and set the wood on fire. The blaze was quickly extinguished and no other damage to the buildings was done.

Ungava

Ungava, a northeastern territory in the Labrador peninsula, has been known as the territory of New Quebec since 1912, when it was ceded to the province of Quebec. Hudson straits is on the north of it, Hudson bay and James bay on the west, the province of Quebec proper on the south, and the Atlantic ocean on the east. Ungava bay is in the north of Ungava, opening into Hudson strait. The territory has an area of 261,750 square miles, and a population of 14,000—8,000 being white people, 2,000 being Eskimos, and the rest Indians.

HEED THE WARNING

Many Bethel People Have Done So. When the kidneys are weak they give unmistakable warnings that should not be ignored. By examining the urine and treating the kidneys upon the first sign of disorder, many days of suffering may be saved. Weak kidneys usually expel a dark, ill-smelling urine, full of "brick dust," sediment and painful in passage. Sluggish kidneys often cause a dull pain in the small of the back, headaches, dizzy spells, tired, languid feelings and frequent rheumatic twinges.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. There is no better recommended remedy.

Bethel people endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor.

S. J. Haselton, Chapman St., Bethel, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly all right and I gladly recommend them. I had a severe spell of rheumatic trouble and my kidneys showed signs of disorder. My left leg was drawn up and painful and backache annoyed me considerably. Doan's Kidney Pills were advised so I went to Bosserman's Drug Store and got three boxes. When I had finished taking Doan's, I was relieved."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Haselton had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

FATHER HAS BRIGHT IDEA

Wanted Timepiece That Would Convey Something of a Hint to His Daughter's Caller.

He looked like a good customer, and the shop assistant had produced for him in inspection clocks of every conceivable make and design; but nothing seemed to satisfy him. At last, however, the jeweler, in despair, brought out a massive timepiece of most intricate workmanship and very curious design.

"Here, sir," he began, "is a wonderful clock! It has a very high order of intelligence. A chime of sweet-toned bells rings every morning at twelve o'clock, and a bird hops out and sings."

"That's better," said the customer, looking quite pleased. "I'll take that one if you'll make a few slight alterations."

REAL COMPLIMENT TO WRITER

Small Girl Evidently Had Been Deeply Impressed by the Grimms' Fascinating Fairy Tales.

Senator Lodge, whose literary acumen is well known, said at a literary dinner in Boston:

"The true test of a novelist is that he hold the reader absolutely, by his magic making the reader his absolute slave."

"Like the story of the Grimm brothers, you know, the famous writers of fairy tales. One day a little girl rang the bell of their house, and Wilhelm Grimm opened the door."

"Are you the Mr. Grimm who writes the pretty tales?" she asked.

"Yes—my brother and I."

"Did you write the one about the clever little tailor who married the princess?"

"Yes."

"Well," said the little girl, "the tale says that every one who does not believe it must pay you a thaler. Now, I don't believe that a princess ever married a tailor. So here is a goshen; I haven't as much as a thaler; but I hope to pay you the rest little by little."

"At this point Jacob Grimm came in, and the two brothers had an interesting talk with their little reader, but they couldn't persuade her to take back her goshen. She left it on the hall table and took leave soberly, insisting that she would bring the rest another time."

MODERN LUXURIES

Bug: No use talking, these outdoor bathing pools are great!

Cat Warns Family of Fire.

An old family cat jumping on their bed awakened a couple in Hull and resulted in their escaping from being burned to death in a fire which badly damaged their home. When awakened by the cat the man noticed that the whole downstairs of the house was a mass of flames, while the fire was rapidly making its way to the sleeping chamber on the second floor. He seized the mattress off the bed, threw it out of the window, and his wife and himself jumped onto it from the window. Neither was injured.

Hair Thread Takes Root.

About ten years ago a man in Saco, Maine, while riding a wild bucking horse had his lower lip badly cut and split by being struck with the horn of the animal, when the horse reared. A woman kindly acted as surgeon and sewed the cut lip together with one of her own hairs. The hair eventually took firm root, as the man has had a continuous growth of hair which has required constant cutting ever since.

Homesick Ducks Return.

A curious instance of a pair of muskrat ducks occurred the other week. A duck and a drake were taken by a shipper from a farm of North Hallowell to a farm of Wiscasset, a distance of twelve miles. The North Hallowell farmer was surprised one morning by the return of the ducks. They were seen swimming part of the distance and reached North Hallowell safe and sound.

WHY

Indians Mark Desert Springs With Small Rock Heaps

In traveling over the plains of western Texas one now and then comes upon little isolated heaps of rocks, in twos, that at first glance seem not at all remarkable.

After a time, however, one notices that one heap is generally about three feet high and the other about a foot lower. The two are always within a few feet of each other and usually on an elevation or a plateau commanding a view of the country for five miles or more. The rocks are roughly heaped together, as if left by children at play.

In time one learns the significance of these rock heaps, as he talks with some of the Indians, who know by heart all the legends and customs and deeds of their people.

According to these Indians, when the Great Spirit lapped up the mighty rivers of the plains, he left springs and water basins here and there for the antelope and the Indians. These antelope easily found by scent, but the Indians had to search long and anxiously for them. Once found, they were seldom lost, thanks to these rude rock heaps.

You may see an Indian crouch down behind the taller heap, sight over the low one and mark the farthest object in a straight line, which is likely to be a clump of bushes on the horizon. Then he rides toward these bushes and finds—not water, as he expected, but two other heaps of rocks.

Sighting as before, and taking a rock-faced cliff, perhaps toward the southwest, as a goal, he rides a couple of miles farther, and there, trickling out from beneath the cliff's rocky brow, is a spring of fresh, clear water.

It is said that whenever a band of Indians come upon a new spring they built the rock heaps along the trail. At any rate, it appears that these rude signposts lead either to water or to places that show traces of a former watercourse.—Christian Science Monitor.

WATCH FOR DANGER SIGNAL

Why One Should Pause for Reflection When Daily Task Becomes Easy of Accomplishment.

Has your work become very easy? Do you find you could do it with little effort? Has it ceased to impose any strain or fatigue upon you? Do you no longer feel loss of vitality after a long spell of it? Can you now do it "as easy as water rolls off a duck's back"? If so, look out. Do some stock-taking. Examine your output. Analyze your attitude towards your work. Ask yourself whether you are putting your whole self, your whole heart and soul into your job. Ponder whether you are exerting yourself to the utmost to produce the maximum results.

No work should be easy if done with all one's might and main. Every job should "take it out of a man" if he expends every ounce of his energy in doing it the very best way within his power. Work done with little effort is liable to yield little result. Every job can be done excellently or indifferently. Excellence necessitates effort—hard, sustained, concentrated effort.

So, if you are sleeping over your job, instead of sweating over it, overhaul yourself.—Forbes Magazine.

Why Helicopter Is of Little Value.

While the Brennan helicopter is expected to revolutionize air flying, a British artillery colonel opines it will not be of much benefit to armies in the event of war.

According to the London Graphic, this officer says such a machine would prove an easy mark for a modern "machine" or aircraft gun, its very stability proving its downfall. "It was difficult," he declared, "to hit an ordinary airplane flying 10,000 feet high at the rate of 100 miles an hour, but we did it. What about a stationary one?"

When it was pointed out to him that the new machine claimed to be practically invisible at 5,000 feet, the officer replied: "With modern developments in anti-aircraft artillery we could plaster the whole area with high-explosive shells, from the explosion of which nothing could escape."

Why Icebergs Can't Be Measured.

It is practically impossible to obtain the measurements of an iceberg below and above water on account of its size; and, probably for that reason, the statistics given by different authorities vary considerably. The Encyclopedia Britannica says, when describing icebergs, that "Only one-ninth of the mass of ice seen above water,"—while in other works statements are made that icebergs float with about one-eighth of their volume above the surface of the water and seven-eighths below it, and that they float with only one-seventh or one-sixth of the ice above the surface of the sea.

Why He Enjoyed It.

"How can you wear a dreamy look when that jazz orchestra is making such an infernal racket?"

"It carries me back to my happy childhood," said the cabaret patron. "It was brought up in the shadow of a boiler factory."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why He Was Good Match.

"She's making a fine match." "That so? I understand the young man is very wild in his ways."

"Wild. He is. Drinks a lot and does all manner of things he shouldn't, but it's a good match. His folks have a lot of money."

Col. Thomas F. Foley, who is being sent out of Massachusetts State Penitentiary by the State, announced that he will not be a candidate for the office of state senator. As commander of the 101st Infantry Regiment and with my other duties I could not devote the time I would like to give to the Legion were I to hold the office of State commander.

Bank Examiner Edgar A. Tracy of Concord, N. H., and Miss Beatrice L. Hovey, stepped into an automobile, and started out looking for a man, but finding one to tie the knot was not so easy as they anticipated. They called at the homes of nine clerks to find every one out of town. Finally, as they were trying out the last one on their list, they found the Rev. Edward R. Stearns at home who prepared to marry them.

Widows or other dependents, under the Workmen's Compensation Act will receive a maximum of $10 per week, according to a new law now to effect. By this law the maximum amount payable for death is automatically raised from $100 to $1400. The amount payable is regulated according to the number of dependent children, with $10 per week when there is one child, $15 per week for two children, $14 for three children and $10 per week when there are more than three children. The limit for which payments may be made is 400 weeks. Quail not larger than 10-gauge are to be used, and not more than 11 birds in the aggregate of all kinds may be taken in one day. W. C. Adams of the State Division of Fish and Game advises hunters to familiarize themselves with migratory birds and other specimens which are to be protected.

STATES HELPING TO ELIMINATE MENACE OF RAILWAY CROSSINGS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What can be done when a community sets out to rid itself of the menace of railroad grade crossings is shown by the plans for a federal-aid road to be constructed in Alabama between Arlton and Clayton. In a distance of about 25 miles the old road crossed the railroad 14 times. By good engineering 13 of these crossings have been eliminated, the remaining one being in the small town of Cllo, where there are only three trains a day, and these move at slow speed as they approach the station.

Some months ago the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture announced that grade crossings would be eliminated on all federal-aid highways wherever practicable. Officials of the bureau are receiving hearty co-operation from state highway departments and the general approval of the public. It has been found possible to revise many plans, keeping the road entirely on one side of the track or finding a suitable place where the road can cross beneath or above the track. In some states the highway departments are having difficulty in inducing the railroad companies to share the cost of placing the highway above or under the track.

Is simple enough if one will but put the right foot on the running board, grasping the body of the car, one hand on each side of the door, and as the weight is put upon the right foot exert a slight forward pulling motion with the hands and arms, at the same time lifting the left leg clear of the running board and placing it on the floor of the car as illustrated in the second drawing. With the body in this position as the right foot is drawn into the car the body can easily and naturally be turned using the left foot as a pivot and a sitting position on the seat of the car taken without awkwardness or inconvenience and likewise without bumping one's head against the top of the machine.

Getting Out.

In getting out of a machine if one will but grasp the side of the body with the right hand, at the same time placing the right foot on the running board, as shown in the third illustration.

Exit From Car Completed.

Then, their body is in such a position that it is but a simple matter when the weight is put on the right foot, the head extended beyond the line of the top, to reach over and grasp the other side of the door opening with the left hand, at the same time putting the weight of the body on the right foot and two hands and arms, bringing the left foot out of the car and to the curb, as shown in the fourth drawing.

Disengaged Clutch.

The clutch is disengaged before each shifting of transmission gears to allow easy movement of gears and shifting lever and prevent grating and possible breaking of gear teeth while the shift is attempted. It is possible to change gears without first disengaging the clutch, but considerable practice and familiarity with them is necessary, and danger of stripping the teeth and strain on the entire driving system is greatly increased.

Oceans' Levels Changed.

It is the belief of scientists that, during the glacial period, when the land was covered with huge coats of ice, the level of the ocean was from 150 to 200 feet lower than its normal level, according to Dr. T. W. Vaughan of the United States geological survey. This belief is based upon the theory that what goes up must come down, and scientists are able to account for the presence of ice on the land only on the supposition that it came from the sea.

Proof of this is found in coral reefs in all parts of the world. Their position indicates that the building was commenced in the shallow waters of the then coast line, only to have the waters rise. The little animals which create the reefs kept on building toward the new level. Many of the reefs, it has been observed, have been built on submarine shelves, and these are invariably found on coasts which show signs of having once been submerged.

THAT ANGEL BOY

He Sang Like an Angel, But His Trip to the Country Will Be Long Remembered.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

ALL SO glad you consented to stay over until Monday, auntie, for now you can hear our famous boy choir," Ethel had said at the breakfast table that Sunday morning.

"Humph! I've heard of 'em," Ann Wetherby had returned crisply, "but I never took much stock in 'em. A choir—made of boys—just as if music could come from yella'n, hoodin' boys!"

An hour later at St. Mark's, the softly swelling music of the organ was sending curious little thrills tingling to Miss Wetherby's finger tips. Then faintly in the distance sounded the first sweet notes of the processional.

Ethel stirred slightly and threw a meaning glance at her aunt. The woman met the look unflinchingly.

"Them ain't no boys!" she whispered tartly.

Nearer and nearer swelled the chorals until the leaders reached the open doors. Miss Wetherby gave one look at the white-robed singers, then she reached over and clutched Ethel's fingers.

"They be!—and in their nighties, too!" she added in a horrified whisper.

One of the boys had a solo in the anthem that morning, and as the clear, pure soprano rose higher and higher, Miss Wetherby gazed in undisguised awe at the young singer. She noted the soulful eyes uplifted devoutly, and the broad forehead flamed in clustering brown curls. To Miss Wetherby it was the face of an angel.

At dinner that day Miss Wetherby learned that the soloist was "Bobby Sawyer." She also learned that he was one of Ethel's "fresh-air" mission children, and that, as yet, there was no place for him to go for a vacation.

"That angel child with the heavenly voice—and no one to take him in?" Miss Wetherby bethought herself of her own airy rooms and flowering meadows, and snapped her lips together with sudden determination.

"I'll take him!" she announced tersely, and went home the next day to prepare for her expected guest.

Early in the morning of the first Monday in July, Miss Wetherby added the finishing touches to the dainty white bedroom upstairs.

"Dear little soul—I hope he'll like it!" she murmured.

On the table in the corner were hymn books, the great red-and-gold family Bible, and a "Baxter's Saints' Rest," the only reading matter suited to Miss Wetherby's conception of the mind behind those soulful orbs upraised in devout adoration.

Just before Ann started for the station Tommy Green came over to leave his pet dog, Rover, for Miss Wetherby's "fresh-air" boy to play with.

"Now, Thomas Green," remonstrated Ann severely, "you can take that dirty dog right home. I won't have him around. Besides, Robert Sawyer ain't the kind of a boy you be. He don't care for such things—I know he don't!"

Half an hour later, Ann Wetherby, her heart thumping loudly against her ribs, anxiously scanned the passengers as they alighted at Slocumville station. There were not many—an old man, two girls, three or four women, and a small, dirty boy with a dither dog and a brown paper parcel in his arms.

He had not come!

Miss Wetherby held her breath and looked furtively at the small boy. There was nothing familiar in his appearance, she was thankful to say! He must be another one for somebody else. Still, perhaps he might know something about her own angel boy—she would ask.

Ann advanced warily, with a disapproving eye on the dog.

"Little boy, can you tell me why Robert Sawyer didn't come?" she asked severely.

The result of her cautious question disconcerted her not a little. The boy dropped the dog and bundle to the platform, threw his hat in the air, and capered about in wild glee.

"Well, there, Dones! We're all right! Golly—but I thought we were side-tracked, for sure!"

Miss Wetherby sank in limp dismay to a box of freight near the barred gate and disclosed the clustering brown curls and broad forehead, and the eyes uplifted to the whirling hat completed the tollable picture.

The writhing caught the hat doffed on the back of his head, and pronounced to Ann with his hands in his pockets.

"Ge-whizz! marm—but I thought I'd flunked for sure, I reckoned me an' Bones was barlin' up the wrong line this time. It looked as if we'd come to a jumpin'-off place, an' I'd given us the slip. I'm Bob, myself, to see, an' I've come all right!"

"Are you Robert Sawyer?" she asked.

"Just ye hear that, Dones!" laughed the boy shrilly, capering round and round the small dog again. "I'm 'Robert Sawyer'—now do ye hear?" Then he shifted back to his position in front of Miss Wetherby, and made a low bow. "Robert Sawyer, at yer service," he said, "I'm at yer service."

"I'm at yer service," he said, "I'm at yer service."

"Robert, You Ain't a Going Home Today."

dog. Soon the boy gave his trousers an awkward hitch and glanced sideways up at the woman.

"Oh, I say, marm, I think it's bully of yer ter let me an' Bones come," he began sheepishly. "It looked 'a if our case'd hang fire till the crack o' doom; there wan't no one ter have us. When Miss Ethel told me her annd'd take us, I jest struck me all of a heap. I tell ye, me an' Bones made tracks for Slocumville 'bout's soon as they'd let us."

"I hain't no doubt of it!" retorted Ann, looking back hopelessly at the dog.

"Ye see," continued the boy confidently, "there ain't ovry one what likes boys, an'—hi, there!—go it, Bones!" he suddenly shrieked, and scampered wildly after the dog which had dashed into the bushes by the side of the road.

Ann did not see her young charge again until she had been home half an hour.

"Jimmy Christmas!" he exclaimed, "I begun ter think I'd lost ye, but I remembered yer last name was the same's Miss Ethel's, an' a boy—Tommy Green, around the corner—he told me where ye lived. And, oh, I say, me an' Bones are a-goin' off with him an' Rover after I've had somethin' ter eat—'t is mos' grub time, ain't it?" he added anxiously.

Ann sighed in a discouraged way.

"Yes, I s'pose 't is. I left some beans a-bakin', and dinner'll be ready pretty quick. You can come upstairs with me, Robert, an' I'll show ye where yer goin' ter sleep," she finished, with a sinking heart, as she thought of those ruffled pillow shams.

Bobby followed Miss Wetherby into the dainty chamber. He gave one look, and puckered up his lips into a long, low whistle.

"Well, I'll be flabbergasted! Oh, I say, now, ye don't expect me ter stay in all this fuss an' fixin's?" he exclaimed ruefully.

"It—is the room I calculated for ye," said Ann, with almost a choke in her voice.

The boy looked up quickly and something rose within him that he did not quite understand.

"Oh, well, ye know, it's all right as a whistle an' all that, but I ain't uster bavin' it laid on so thick. I ain't no great shakes, ye know, but I'll walk the chalk all right this time."

Miss Wetherby did not see much of her guest that afternoon; he went away immediately after dinner and did not return until supper time.

After supper he went at once to his room; but it was not until Miss Wetherby ceased to hear the patter of his feet on the floor above that she leaned back in her chair with a sigh of relief.

went upstairs to make the bed that Tuesday morning, the light that met her eyes struck terror to her heart. The bedclothes were scattered in wild confusion half over the room. The washbowl, with two long slinging books across it, she discovered to her horror, was serving as a prison for a small green snake. The Bible and the remaining hymn books, topped by "Baxter's Saints' Rest," lay in a suspicious-looking pile on the floor. Under the Miss Wetherby did not look. After her experience with the snake and the wash bowl, her nerves were not strong enough. She recoiled in dismay, also, from the sight of two yellow, paper-covered books on the table, flaunting shamelessly the titles: "Jack the Pirate of Red Island," and "Haunted by a Headless Ghost."

Ann Wetherby never forgot that Fourth of July, nor for that matter, the days that immediately followed. She went about with both ears stuffed with cotton, and eyes that were ever on the alert for all manner of creeping, crawling things in which Bobby's soul delighted.

The boy, reinforced by the children of the entire neighborhood, held a circus in Miss Wetherby's woodshed, and substituted a Wild Indian camp in her attic. The poor woman was quite powerless, and remonstrated all in vain. The boy was so cheerfully goodtempered under her sharpest words that the victory was easily his.

But on Saturday when Miss Wetherby, returning from a neighbor's, found two cats, four dogs, and two toads tied to her parlor chairs, together with three cages containing respectively a canary, a parrot, and a squirrel (collected from obliging householders), she rebelled in earnest and summoned Bobby to her side.

"Robert, I've stood all I'm a-goin' ter. You've got to go home Monday. Do you hear?"

"Oh, come off, Miss Wetherby, 'tain't only a menagry, an' you don't use the room none."

Miss Wetherby's mouth worked convulsively.

"Robert!" she gasped, as soon as she could find her voice, "I never, never heard of such dreadful goin's-on! You certainly can't stay here no longer," she continued sternly.

An hour later, Miss Wetherby had a caller. It was the chorister of her church choir. The man sat down gingerly on one of the slippery haircloth chairs, and proceeded at once to state his business.

"I understand, Miss Wetherby, that you have an—er—young singer with you."

Miss Wetherby choked, and stammered "Yes."

"He sings—er—very well, doesn't he?"

The woman was still more visibly embarrassed.

"I—I don't know," she murmured; then in stronger tones, "The one that looked like him did."

"Are there two?" he asked in stupid amazement.

Miss Wetherby laughed uneasily, then she sighed.

"Well, ter tell the truth, Mr. Wiggins, I s'pose there ain't but, sometimes I think there must be. I'll send Robert down ter the rehearsal tonight, and you can see what ye can do with him." And with this Mr. Wiggins was forced to be content.

Bobby sang on Sunday. The little church was full to the doors. Bobby was already famous in the village. The witchery of the glorious voice entered again into the woman's soul, and indeed, sent the entire congregation home in an awed silence that was the height of admiring homage.

At breakfast time Monday morning, Bobby came downstairs with his brown paper parcel under his arm. Ann glanced at his woe-fal face, then went out into the kitchen and slammed the oven door sharply.

"Well, marm, I've had a bully time—sure's a gun," said the boy wistfully, following her.

"Robert," she began with assumed sternness, trying to hide her depth of feeling, "you ain't a-goin' home ter-day—now mind what I say! Take them things upstairs. Quick—breakfast's all ready!"

A great light transfigured Bobby's face. He tossed his bundle into a corner and fell upon Miss Wetherby with a beaklike hug.

"Ge-whizz! marm—but yer a brick! An' I'll run yer errands an' split yer wood, an' I won't take no dogs an' cats in the parlor, an' I'll do ev'rythin'—ev'rythin' ye want me to! Oh, golly—golly!—I'm goin' ter stay—I'm goin' ter stay—I'm goin' ter stay!"

And Bobby danced out of the house into the yard there to turn somersault after somersault in hilarious glee.

A queer choking feeling came into Ann Wetherby's throat. She seemed still to feel the loving clasp of those small young arms.

And Bobby stayed—not only Monday, but through four other long days—days which he filled to the brim with fun and frolic and joyous shouts as before—and yet with a change.

The shouts were less shrill and the yells less prolonged when Bobby was near the house.

And when the four long days were over and Saturday came, a note—and not Bobby's—was sent to the city. The note was addressed to "Miss Ethel Wetherby," and this was what Ethel's amazed eyes read:

"My Dear Niece—You can tell that singer man of Robert's that he is not going back any more. He is going to live with me and go to school next winter. I am going to adopt him for my very own. His father and mother are dead—he said so.

I must close now, for Robert is hungry, and wants his dinner. Love to all.

ANN WETHERBY.

USE OF CHOKE COIL AND TRANSFORMERS

Latter Provide the Most Practical Method of Coupling for the Amateur.

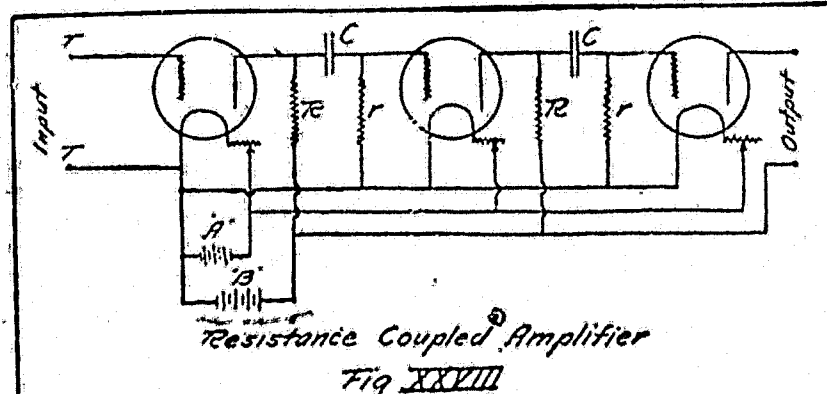

Figure XXVIII shows the actual circuit of a three-stage resistance coupled amplifier. The output of such a circuit is K times K times K the input or assuming the amplification factor of each tube to be 10, the output would be 1,000 times the input. The resistance R is the coupling resistance whose function it is to transform the plate current variation to potential drops to be applied to the grid of the next tube.

The capacity C is simply a means of allowing the potential variations across the coupling resistance. R to be applied to the grid of the next tube, yet not allowing the "B" battery applied to the plate circuit of a tube to be applied to the grid of the next. Because of using the condenser to what one might say, insulate the grid from the "B" battery potential, it is necessary to use a grid leak, to keep the charge which collects on the grid from becoming excessive and reducing the plate current to zero.

One of the chief disadvantages of the resistance coupled amplifier is that very high plate battery potentials are necessary. The amplification per tube of a resistance-coupled amplifier is not as high as it is for some other methods but it is stable and does not distort the input as much as do some other methods used which give greater amplification per tube.

Resistance-coupled amplifying may be used to amplify either radio or audio frequency.

A method of transforming the change in plate current of a vacuum tube to differences in potential is by means of a choke coil. A choke coil consists of a number of turns of wire wound up in a multilayer coil and may or may not have an iron core. A coil of this kind offers a high impedance to the flow of alternating current, but has a relatively low direct current resistance.

The choke coil on account of having a low ohmic resistance, will have a smaller method of coupling, so that lower "B" battery potential can be used on choke coil coupled amplifiers and the batteries can be of smaller capacity.

The choke coil not only has inductance but a certain amount of distributed capacity. The distributed capacity of the plate with respect to the filament, together with the inductance of the coil, give to the plate circuit a certain definite period. That is, the plate circuit is an oscillating circuit whose resonant frequency is determined by the total capacity and inductance in the circuit.

If the choke coil be made variable, it will not only serve to transform the plate current variation with maximum plate potential variations, but it will also serve to tune out unwanted frequencies. When the plate circuit of the amplifier is tuned, the resonant frequency is amplified K times, but all other frequencies are amplified to a less degree.

Another and by far the most widely used method of coupling successive tubes in a cascade amplifier is by means of transformers. The transformer method of coupling amplifier tubes may be considered a development and a refinement of the simpler choke coil method. Coupling tubes by means of properly designed transformers will give a greater amplification per tube than any of the other methods.

Figure XXXI shows the diagram of a three-stage transformer coupled amplifier, where P and S are respectively the primaries and secondaries of the coupling transformers. The transformer as a whole is so designed as to convert the plate current variations into maximum potential variations. The plate circuit of each tube which includes the primary winding of a coupling transformer must be designed for maximum power amplification, while at the same time the ratio of the transformer must be such as to deliver maximum potential to the grid circuit of the next tube.

The greatest advantages of the transformer method of coupling audio frequency amplifiers are the high degree of amplification, the relative simplicity of operation, and the low plate voltage required.

Chief among the disadvantages of the transformer coupled frequency amplifier is noise. Also the transformers amplify different frequencies to different degrees, which means that when this type of coupling is used for radiophone reception, the voice is distorted by the amplifying transformers. However, from a practical standpoint, the average amateur will have better results using transformer coupled audio frequency amplifiers than from any other method that can be used with the tubes and equipment now available.

BOSTON MARKET REVIEW

For Week Ending August 19, 1922.

Prepared by U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates

DAIRY AND POULTRY PRODUCTS

Butter market firmed up the first of the week and there was considerable more activity among the buyers who were making purchases slightly in advance of their actual requirements. Fine butter continues to be scarce and in demand with medium and lower grades in liberal supply and not so firmly held. Western Extras selling 30 1/2 cts. Northern extras assorted sizes spruce tubs 27-37 1/2 cts. Cheese market continues dull with prices unchanged from last week. Consumption is very light therefore buyers are not taking chances in any quantity. Jobbing business is also quiet. Demand this week has been centered around Single Daisies with Young Americas moving very slow and only a fair trade of York State Twin, York State Twin 21-21 1/2 cts, Single Daisies 20 1/2-21 cts, Young Americas 20 1/2-21 1/4 cts. Eggs market rules firmer and there is a good demand for fine quality Westerns. Nearby henneries are very short and demand is good. Current Receipts selling mostly 24-25 cts. with candled and graded showing good quality and heavy weight 22 1/2-23 cts. Trades and dirties 19 1/2-21 1/4 cts. Nearby henneries 35-45 cts. Fancy Browns up to 45 cents. Dressed Poultry being fairly steady but demand is a trifle lighter than last week. Broilers are moving slower and prices a trifle easier. Heavy fowls (14-16 lb. average) 22-23 cts. Broilers 22-23 cts. Live poultry short in supply and prices a trifle firmer. Fowls selling mostly 22-27 cts. Fancy broilers 22-23 cts. White Leghorns 22-25 cts.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Cantaloupes and peaches continue to advance. Onion week, potatoes firm. Native Apples in liberal supply, weaker, various varieties best $1.50-1.75 bu. Poorer 50 cts-1.25 bu. box. Beans druggery, lower, Green $1.25-1.50, Shell $1.00-1.25. Wax $1.25-1.50 bu. box. Beets firm, bunches 40-60 cts, row 75 cts, cut off 1.25-1.50 bu. box. Cabbage slightly weaker, closing $1.50-1.75 bbl. Corn firm, closing steady, White 75 cts-1.25, Yellow mostly $1.25-1.50 bu. box. Cucumbers steady to firm, fancy mostly $1.35, few $1.50, No. 1 and medium 75 cts-1.00 bu. box. Lettuce steady 15-25 cts. bu. box. Connecticut Valley onions closing weak $2.50-2.75 per 100 lb. sack. Tomatoes lower, outdoor 1.25-2.00 bu. box, Hot-house 8-10 cts. lb.

SHIPPED IN STOCK

Cantaloupes higher, supplies moderate. California Turlock closing $3.00 standard, $2.00 fine crates. Maryland and Delaware pink and green meat, closing best $2.50-3.50 standard crates of 24 or 48 melons. Good peaches scarce, higher, few Virginia Ebertas large, mostly $4.50 crate, White varieties mostly $3.00 crate. Delaware best Ebertas $2.50-3.50 crate. Maryland White varieties best mostly $1.25-1.25 few fancy $1.00-2.00 crate. Potatoes firm. New Jersey 150 lb. sack Cobblers mostly around $2.10 sack. 100 lb. bags packed locally mostly $1.40 few $1.50 bag. Tomatoes closing steady, New Jersey Acme best mostly $1.00 per crate, Connecticut best $1.50-2.00 a bu. New York Big Boston Lettuce mostly fair condition, 60 cts-1.00 crate. Sweet potatoes druggery, weak. Yellow No. 1 Virginia $4.00-5.00 bbl. North Carolina $3.50-4.00 bbl. Watermelons steady, for good stock, movement druggery. Mostly Maryland Tom Watsons $3.50-4.00 bbl. 20-60 cts. according to quality and size. Blueberries good stock steady, Maine Canadian best mostly 15-18 cts, fancy 20-23 cts. quart.

A. A. Cobb of the board of assessors of North Attleboro, Mass., defeated Bart Smith in a clam-eating contest held at Anawan Grange in Rehoboth. Assessor Cobb devoured 27 pans to his opponent's 22. Each pan held two quarts. There has been considerable rivalry between the two men as to their prowess in clam eating. Friends of both decided to put them to a test. Besides the clams, each contestant was obliged to eat his share of watermelon. Representative William Plattner was referee. Senator Elias D. Reed, Stanley Hall and several other well known politicians acted as a committee on rules.

Two complete skeletons, believed to be the remains of inhabitants of the earth in the stone age, have been unearthed by a band of archaeologists headed by Prof. Warren King Moorehead, near the Housatonic river at Laurel Beach, Conn. The professor and his assistants have been digging in that section for some time and claim to have found evidence that the section was once inhabited by a forgotten race. Both skeletons appear to be well preserved. The bones are rough, denoting great strength, the skulls are flat and both possess a perfect set of teeth of unusual size. Prof. Moorehead said that it was his belief that bodies were buried in salt water several thousand years ago which account for their preservation.

The agricultural statistician reports that the outlook for Maine potatoes is 11 points below average, due mainly to excessive rains; acreage is reduced from 7 per cent to 10; stand is below average, and blight somewhat general in Aroostock, the hot, dry weather has kept it from spreading or doing much damage. Outlook in New Hampshire poor, but the rest of New England promises an average crop, or better; set of tubers generally fair to good; some blight in many sections reported and early varieties ripening rapidly. Opinions as to prospective yields barring blight and other destructive conditions, vary, but the best judges expect fair to good yields, except where damaged by water.

The price agreement between the Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the Shoe Workers Protective Union, Haverhill, Mass., which went into effect Nov. 1, 1920, will not be renewed when it expires Dec. 21. This became known when Sigfried Pothier, business agent of the union workers' local of the S. W. P. U., announced that the organization voted unanimously against the renewal of the peace pact. The agreement was prepared after six month's controversy in 1920.

Care of Phone.

Once every so often give the telephone a thorough washing in alcohol. Take off the mouthpiece and pour alcohol through the little holes into a saucer. Wash the receiver with a cloth wet with alcohol. Do not wipe the parts dry, but let the alcohol evaporate. Alcohol is one of the most effective antiseptics known.

After Using It Twenty Years

Mr. Fred N. Henderson of Bangor, Maine, writes, "I consider the 'L. F.' a most reliable medicine, the best remedy for headache, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, and as a general tonic. No one who has used it can praise it too highly. My wife and I have found it a faithful friend, always dependable and helpful."

NEED FAITH AND CONFIDENCE

Positions Open for Newly Trained Victims of World War Before They Are Ready.

That the rehabilitated World War veteran's success in life depends absolutely upon his faith in himself, is the assertion of Maj. W. F. Lent, chief of the employment service of the United States veterans' bureau which has in charge the proper training of thousands of disabled service men.

Major Lent, in speaking before the headquarters staff of the American Legion in Indianapolis, said that the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary had as one of their greatest obligations the task of instilling into the hearts of service men an absolute faith and confidence in themselves and their abilities to cope with life's problems. He said that the government is to have a place for every veteran three or four months before the veteran is ready to take it. "We do not guarantee that a man who has studied to be a factory superintendent will be placed in that position," the major explained, "but he will be placed in the path so that he can obtain such a position through his own initiative and ability."

"We want employers to understand, too, that these men are no longer cripples. They may be physically crippled, but not industrially or vocationally. When we put a man with one arm into a job, he is as well able, and perhaps more so, to do that particular work as in the man with two arms."

AS THE "FLAPPER OF 1776"

A white wig and a hoop-skirt are not generally considered as part of the necessary equipment of a "flapper." The flapper pictured here, however, wears these and other colonial trappings most effectively when she wanted to draw the attention of the public to the fact that the Indianapolis American Legion was presenting a historical motion picture at one of the local show houses.

Miss Hilda Scheurer, charming as a "flapper" of 1922 was still more attractive as a "flapper of 1776." The crowds which packed one of the largest and finest motion picture theaters in the Middle West during the entire showing of "Caribgan," a picture of revolutionary days, which the American Legion is sponsoring, was proof of the fact that Miss Scheurer and her sister "flappers" did a good job of advertising.

It was not the first work Miss Scheurer has done for the American Legion. She is an ardent worker in the Legion Auxiliary.

War Gases for Farm Pests.
Gases which were used with such deadly effect during the World War are now being used for the extermination of farm pests. Gases have been used in the West for the extermination of jack rabbits and gophers. Mustard gas is sprinkled over the paths of rabbits, irritating their feet and causing them to rub them across the face. The poison then quickly becomes effective.

Clock for Airplanes.
The air service of the United States War Department has developed a peculiar kind of clock to be used on airplanes. It is said the clock will keep perfect time in any temperature from 90 degrees below zero to 120 degrees above. Furthermore, the vibration of the plane does not affect the accuracy of the timepiece, which has a movement like a watch and is wound by electricity.

Veteran Had Many Relatives.
In investigating the record of Benjamin F. Taylor of Crystal Springs, Miss., a World War veteran who died in 1918, the veterans' bureau found that Taylor, exclusive of cousins, was closely related to four per cent of the total population of his home town of 1,305 residents. The stepmother and 15 brothers and sisters are each receiving monthly installments of $102.

Carrying On With the American Legion

"Standing Bear," a Sioux squaw, presented Mrs. Lowell B. Hobart, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary with an Indian doll during Mrs. Hobart's stay to the Indian reservation in South Dakota.

In a $10,000 wager the American Legionnaires from Dallas, Tex., started to walk from Dallas to New York in 90 days. They got married on the way and three fell by the wayside. Only two reached the last lap of the journey.

A hero of the World War, five times wounded at Chateau Thierry, but with out with and with no prospect of getting the government compensation to which he was entitled, Daniel Webster of Philadelphia, Pa., committed suicide and would have been buried in a pauper's grave had not the American Legion given him a decent burial.

THE J. E. JONES LETTER

"PUBLIC" IN THE GRANDSTAND

No Executive of the Nation has ever worked harder to find a way to restore peace and order in the industrial world than has President Harding. His methods have been wholly unlike those of his illustrious predecessors, and there has been an absence of the "big stick" policy of Roosevelt, the passive attitude of Taft, or the spirit by which former President Wilson sought to affect compromises. President Harding has been tolerant and forbearing with the different parties in the rail and coal strikes, but the outstanding feature in his position has been an insistence that industrial disputes should be settled in court. Obedience to the decisions of the Railroad Labor Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission has constituted the basic principle for the President's position. He has, in short, tried to "put teeth" in the administrative machinery that seeks to voice the position of the public when labor and capital go to the mat.

While the House of Representatives was recessing there was an abundance of newspaper speculation growing out of Washington political gossip to the effect that when both branches of the national Congress again got into full swing that there would be legislation "presented and passed" to prevent strikes. Congress is again in full session and the country has had an opportunity to witness the performance of its members concerning the demands that they "do something, and do it now!"

Thoughtful people differ about the rights of labor and capital, and nearly all people who couldn't strike if they wanted to, are opposed to labor strikes by men who belong to unions and brotherhoods. But Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, keeps stirring about in official circles in Washington, repeating over and over that labor unions "will never surrender the right to strike." Mr. Gompers unquestionably correctly voices the sentiment of all the labor union leaders, and whenever you find one of them, at the head of the brotherhood, or elsewhere, they are preaching the same doctrine.

The headlines of metropolitan newspapers very easily dispose of strikers by inventing legislative panaceas to future strikes; but the Administration knows, and every Senator and Representative fully understands that the "right to strike" is almost a religion among several million American workmen all over the country. When strikes are called capital and labor become belligerent and stubborn. The public observes the grandstand, and the advice of the Administrative heads of the Nation is usually treated more like the pleadings of a small child than as commands from a stern parent.

Serious-minded people in the National Capital admit that the remedy for industrial disputes has not been found, because strikes like wars express the "animal instinct" that civilization has not yet succeeded in taming.

THE UNDERPAID FARMERS

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has issued a lengthy statement showing the average wages paid to railroad and coal mining employees to prove that their net income has been manifest as compared to the returns to farmers and farm laborers. After fastening his bolts on the safe foundation that the value of income, whether it be in the form of wages or money received for sales of products, "is represented not in dollars and cents but in what that income will buy by its purchasing power," Mr. Wallace proceeds to prove that the purchasing power of wages of the railway employes in 1921 was 51 per cent greater than in 1913. The purchasing power of the wages of the coal miner in the same period increased 30 per cent. But the farm hand gained only four per cent, and according to Mr. Wallace "the purchasing power of the farmer himself was, on an average, from 25 to 45 per cent less than in 1913."

It takes a newspaper man to prove cases by comparison; and one cannot follow the Editor Secretary through his argument without feeling something of a surge of indignation over the fact that the farmers, who are the backbone of producing wealth, and number almost one-third of the entire population of the country, should fare so badly in the final balance sheet. Mr. Wallace remarks approvingly upon the fact that the farmers have not "struck," but he observes that they have "endeavored to get relief by all lawful means." And that "lawful means" has been interpreted by the activities of the "farm bloc" in Congress, which has put the clock and the "ribbion" on more pieces of legislation than any similar movement in recent years. While Mr. Wallace's findings must all be admitted, still there is plenty of evidence to indicate that the farmers have found new methods to take care of themselves—and that they are applying major remedies in the treatment of many ills to which they have fallen victims.

COAL PROFITEERS ARE AT LARGE

Despite the fact that Secretary of Commerce Hoover had a distinct understanding with coal operators concerning the prices at which the public should purchase coal, profiteers are now having a high fling at the expense of the public. The Attorney General is sitting in on the proceedings and expects to do some prosecuting and rattle the bones of the manipulators of coal prices.

Price-fixing by the Government has never succeeded to any appreciable extent. During the war it was attempted in a wholesale manner. Sugar prices were "fixed," and yet sugar was thirty-five cents a pound in the National Capital at one stage of the game. Prices then as now were "fixed," but they didn't stay "fixed." Without a first-class war to back him up it is doubtful whether Mr. Hoover will be able to deal effectively with the coal profiteers, who like the tariff, are already a "local issue." The Government will, of course, do all it can to help the situation, but consumers throughout the country must use their utmost personal endeavors to cope with the situation. With the resumption of mining it is held in Washington to be entirely practical for the coal operators and miners to produce sufficient coal to supply the needs of the country this winter. There will be no special "reserves" in the census of coal piles; but official reports show that there is no reason why everyone should not have coal. The local dealer who says otherwise should be able to give a very full and satisfactory reason if, for any alleged cause other than a railroad tie-up, he advances the price of coal to the point where his figures look like profiteering.

SHIP SUBSIDY WILL HAVE TO WAIT

Republican opposition to the passage of the ship subsidy bill has developed in Congress, and when it became known recently that the farm bloc would oppose early action in the House, it became apparent that the measure would have to go over until after election. President Harding is pressing for this legislation, and there is a feeling in the National Capital that he eventually can get a bill through Congress. One Congressman has given it as his opinion that fully fifty Republican votes that might be counted after election would be uncertain if it was attempted to put the bill through the House before November. These votes, he adds, would undoubtedly support the President's bill after the elections.

ROBBERY POST OFFICES UNPROFITABLE

Robbery of post offices has been found to be a poor game, says the United States Post Office Department. Quick action on the part of the Post Office Department has resulted in the creation of a drag net for the robbers which generally leads to their immediate capture when they attempt to get money by filling out stolen money order blanks.

Pearls on Trees.

A round white growth in every way resembling a pearl is frequently found growing in the joints of the bamboo tree in Java. These have been analyzed and found to be almost pure carbonate of lime, which is what the oyster pearl is. These "pearls" are also found on the cocoon tree. The text and pomegranate trees.
